The drawings are objected to under 37 CFR 1.83(a). The drawings must show every feature of the invention specified in the claims. Therefore, the rod mechanism, cable pulley mechanism, and gearwheel transmission, must be shown or the feature(s) canceled from the claim(s). No new matter should be entered.

Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. The figure or figure number of an amended drawing should not be labeled as “amended.” If a drawing figure is to be canceled, the appropriate figure must be removed from the replacement sheet, and where necessary, the remaining figures must be renumbered and appropriate changes made to the brief description of the several views of the drawings for consistency. Additional replacement sheets may be necessary to show the renumbering of the remaining figures. Each drawing sheet submitted after the filing date of an application must be labeled in the top margin as either “Replacement Sheet” or “New Sheet” pursuant to 37 CFR 1.121(d). If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In reciting the various height adjustments, claim 1 fails to set forth sufficient structural elements and the interconnection thereof to support the claimed function. The claim also fails to set forth structure to define and support how the height adjustment of the headrest leads to a smaller height adjustment of the backrest.

In claim 8, the locking means have not been sufficiently interconnected and located relative to the other elements.

In claim 11, there is no recitation of how the seat is adjustable, nor is there structure to support such a function.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Williams et al in view of Jaekel et al.

Williams et al (figs. 1,3) shows a child seat with an adjustable headrest, and a locking means that is actuated by a handgrip 150 at the top of the headrest. The patent to Jaekel et al (figs. 1-5) teaches the adjustability of a headrest along with a backrest, wherein both are concurrently adjustable for providing better comfort and support, and wherein the adjustment of the headrest is twice that of the backrest.

In view of the disclosure of Jaekel et al, to have provided the backrest of the Williams et al with a concurrently adjustable back and head support, would have been an obvious modification to one of ordinary skill in the art. Adaptation of the locking means with the movable back portions would have been will within the level of skill in the art.

Regarding claims 4-7, absent drawings showing the details of such mechanisms, little patentable weight is given thereto.

Note the adjustable seat part shown in figures 13-17 of Williams et al.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Carlson et al, Turman and Szerdahlyi et al show various features of the invention.
